

Energy & Telecommunications

Practice Contacts:

Anthony W. Buxton 207.623.5300 abuxton@preti.com

The firm's Energy group rose to pre-eminence during regulation's heyday. Today, amidst increasing deregulation and the growth of new technologies, Preti Flaherty remains a leader in the rapidly evolving energy marketplace, counseling industrial consumers, energy project developers, energy service companies, Maine's Industrial Energy Consumer Group and most of the state's independent telephone and cable television companies.

Our attorneys possess encyclopedic knowledge of the regulated world coupled with a rare understanding of competitive markets. We help business find advantage in the shift from regulation to competition as we provide expert counsel on legal concerns affecting revenues, cost of service, rate structures, customer relations and competitive relationships. We also assist in the structuring of entities to finance, build, license and operate a wide variety of energy facilities.

With its understanding of business, technology and the changing marketplace, Preti Flaherty is uniquely equipped to assist you in protecting your interests while making the most of an increasingly deregulated world.