Michelle is a member of Preti Flaherty's Environmental Practice Group in the firm's Boston office. She provides clients with counsel across an extensive range of environmental matters, including case research and discovery analysis, document drafting and filing of motions with courts, general trial preparation, and other issues associated with comprehensive client representation.

Michelle is a graduate of Vermont Law and Graduate School, where she earned her J.D. as well as a Master of Food and Agriculture Law and Policy degree. While in law school, she served as Editor-in-Chief for the Vermont Journal of Environmental Law, served as a legal intern at the U.S. Department of the Interior Office of the Solicitor, and was a research assistant in the Harvard Animal Law & Policy Program. Following her graduation from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Michelle served as a staff assistant to U.S. Senator Tammy Baldwin. Michelle joins Preti Flaherty after a year as a trial court law clerk at the Rhode Island Supreme Court.

Michelle lives in Plymouth, Massachusetts.
